Molotov To Air Views In Crucial Geneva Session

GENEVA, June 7 P-Soviet Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov clearly dominated the negotiations for. peace in Indochina tonight on the eve of a conference session which may provide the key to the future of that war-troubled region.

Molotov, after six weeks of futile debate, was expected to make an important statement of Communist policy at tomorrow's 17th session on Indochina.

Laniel's Future At Stake

His declaration may have an important bearing on the deadlocked peace talks here. It may decide also the future of Premier Joseph Laniel's government in Paris and the head of the French delegation here, Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

Molotov's views will reach Paris as the national assembly engages in crucial debate on the Indochina policy of the French government. An attack here by the Soviet diplomat on Bidault could have serious repercussions for his Oral Pleas For government. Many believe Molotov asked for a semi-public session of the conference tomorrow Oppenheimer with the Assembly debate in mind.

Modern Man May See A Supernova

A distant star, the California Institute of Technology reports, has just flared up to form a supernova, the most spectacular of celestial spectacles. "Just flared up" is used relatively. This happened approximately 20,000,000 years ago.

But galaxy NGC 5668 is so incredibly distant that the light from a phenomenon occurring there at about the time the earth was formed has only recently reached this insignificant planet.

It made good time, too—an estimated 670,000,000 miles per hour. The reason it took so long is that it had a long way to come-roughly 120,000,000,000,000,-000,000 miles. The galaxy, an entire universe similar to our milky way, is that far off.

The fact that the behavior of one single star in a galaxy containing countless heavenly bodies is now visible, even through an 18-inch telescope, provides an idea of what a remarkable spectacle a supernova

What is a supernova? The Star of Bethlehem may have been one, but the ancients didn't leave enough astronomical data to judge by. A supernova is like a nova, but 1,000 times as bright. Any star may become a nova, perhaps. Astronomers cannot yet distinguish between a star that will become a nova tomorrow and a star that will only become one after millions of years, if ever. To become a nova, all a star has to do is grow brighter.

If the sun became brighter and hotter and bigger, until in a few days it was 100,000 times as bright as it is now, it would be a nova. If it went on becoming brighter until it was 100,000,000 times brighter, it would be a supernova. Of course, there would be no life left on earth by the time it was a mere dozen times brighter.

This isn't likely to happen to the sun, but supernovae appear in our galaxy every 500 or 600 years on the average, and the odds are millions to one against the sun's becoming even a nova. Astronomers consider the sun too small to become a supernova.

The Star of Bethlehem was probably a supernova in this galaxy-a faint or invisible star that flared up to a brightness greater than that of any normal star in the sky. Chinese astronomers recorded a great flareup in 1054, which is believed to have been a supernova which formed the still expanding Crab Nebula. Modern man has never seen the spectacle of a supernova, so perhaps he's about due for one.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Grandstand Play

Every once in a while in the McCarthy-Stevens hearing. some senator or counsel gets off on a tangent and several hours are consumed in intellectual trivia which undoubtedly are due to fatigue or to some relaxation into a boyswill-be-boys mood. Then Senator Stuart Symington looks very stern and fatigued and speaks ardently, after having received some memoranda from Robert Kennedy, who sits behind him. Or maybe, the counsel from Boston, Mr. Joseph N. Welch, puts on an owlish look and asks a question like, "Why don't you tell the FBI?"

It all sounds terrific. It is a very good performance on the whole. Certainly nobody is wasting money on it; it comes for free on television.

So, all the questioning about why the list of 130 or 135 Communists is not being given to the Defense Department or the FBI were argued for hours without anybody breaking a smile. Yet there was not a senator or counsel who does not know all the answers. Senator Symington waxed eloquent in his praise of Charles E. Wilson, erstwhile head of General Motors and now secretary of defense, and told of his own experience when he ran the Emerson Manufacturing Company in St. Louis before he became a statesman.

What they all knew, Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois brought out patiently, like a father gently chastising naughty children. He brought out the fact that Secretary of Defense Wilson does not have the power of subpoena. No executive officer of the government has the power of subpoena. Only congressional committees and the courts possess the power of subpoena. Therefore, Secretary of Defense Wilson, with the best of intentions, cannot call witnesses before him; he cannot swear them in: he cannot force them to testify under oath. They can deny allegations without fear of reprisal or punishment.

Furthermore, it is an indisputable fact that the UE. the principal union in the electrical equipment industry. is a Communist-dominated union, dismissed from the CIO for being so. No such union would permit the dismissal of its members from a job unless a situation is developed which makes further employment impossible. No quiet investigation, such as President Eisenhower advocates, will help in this situation. The number of Communists in private plants working on government contracts will proliferate unless a noise about such employment is constantly

A great fuss is made at the McCarthy-Stevens hearings about J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI. Everybody makes a speech on the greatness of Mr. Hoover, but all the time they are dragging his name and organization into this messy picture. Mr. Welch is marvelous the way he pulls the FBI into everything. Last week, one afternoon, he wanted Roy Cohn to run fast to J. Edgar Hoover and to slip him the 130 names or whatever it is.

All the FBI can do is to notify the department concerned with the defense contract. After having notified them, its function ceases, because no law forbids a Communist from working in a defense plant and no man can be sent to prison for it. The problem is not one of the law but of public opinion.

The senators know that the FBI can watch a Soviet military attache moving around the country spying, steating secrets, engaging in work that is harmful to this country. They can send reports to the State Department but the FBI can do nothing about it. They cannot arrest the military attache because he enjoys extraterritorial rights. Only the State Department can order this man out of the country.

Senator Henry Jackson seems so sincere when he is surprised at what he does not know, but I wonder whether he is quite so naive, because to me he seems a very knowing person who, if he were chairman of this or any other committee, could do a good investigating job. If the Democrats recapture the Congress, he will have a chance to prove that he can leave no stone unturned. But surely, he must know that the power of subpoena is the heart of this problem.

Naturally politics is politics just as fun is fun, but I wonder if these gentlemen of the Senate will talk in October as they do in June.

WASHINGTON - Though it hasn't hit the headlines, a battle not unlike that within the McCarthy Committee has been taking place inside the House subcommittee on labor racketeering.

Last year in Detroit, hearings on racketeering in the Teamsters Union were suspended after Michigan Teamster leaders made a deal to support Senator Homer Ferguson, Republican for re-election. In the past the Teamsters in that area have lined up strong behind Democrats.

Democratic members of the subcommittee voted 5 to 4 to fire Committee Investigator Downey Rice and Chief Counsel Arthur Towl and to suspend hearings which were scheduled for Washington. The Democrats were able to outvote Chairman George Bender of Ohio who wanted to continue the hearing because one Republican switched.

He was none other than cantankerous, unpredictable Clare Hoffman of Michigan who in Detroit had demanded that the probe of the Teamsters be continued. But in Washington last week, he voted the other way

Painters' Pay-Offs What the committee was about to explore in Washington was a series of pay-offs to local officials of the Painters Union to undercut their own unions, break union contracts and in some cases use make an honest report about the changes taking place in this vast country whose civilization is thousands of years old. We want, if we can, to see how we can make friends in this great community and to gain the good will of its leaders. I cannot see how anything but good can come of such a visit."

Clarification Needed

There is something naive about a man of the experience of Mr. Attlee who believes that we will be able to get an honest look at anything behind the iron curtain or that the hand of friendship should be extended to a government which holds in prison many American citizens captured in the Korean War and never returned as the isuce agreement required. Prime Minister Churchill, moreover, has just told the House of Commons that the government of Red China has snubbed for four years a British offer to exchange ambassadors.

Is it, therefore, the function of a group of minority members of the national legislature to conduct the foreign policy of the British government and decide for themselves whether or not it is opportune to start their own conversations with Chou En-Lai, the foreign minister of Red China, who cannot but feel he is dealing with the British Labor party and possibly with the men who will head up the next British government? The American people may confidently expect that all this will be clarified before long. For never in the heyday of his assertion of congressional powers in inquiring into international policy has even a certain Wisconsin senator ever suggested that he or his associates go abroad to deal directly with a foreign government, especially when his own government, as well as the United Nations, are still in a technical state of war with that aggressor govern-

On Question Of Labor Racketeering

House Subcommittee Battle Develops

Local 368; John E. Sullivan business agent for the District Council. and Archie Moore, also a business

The evidence was developed because Moore had secretly sealed all his bribes in envelopes, recorded the circumstances under which they were paid, and communicated this information to nine other union officials in an effort to clean up racketeering. Moore even went so far as to list in his income-tax returns what he called receipts from

Among the "bribes" was one of $500 a month paid by the Metro Decorating Company of New York which got a contract to paint Andrews Air Base just outside Washington, and which made a deal on September 12, 1951, to make six monthly payments of $500 in order to avoid labor troubles. The money, according to Moore, was divided between Lowrey, Rhodes, Sullivan and himself. Also at Andrews Field, Moore personally collected $500 from Michael Restuscia, a tapping contractor, who wished to avoid labor trouble. The money was split, $166 each, to Lowry and Sullivan, according to Moore's deposition.

Painting Capitol Dome

At one time, trouble arose over painting the Capitol dome. The Capitol architect, David Lynn, had signed with a contractor who imported painters outside the District of Columbia Painters Council. But when Lowry threatened to fly helicopters around the Capitol with signs reading "unfair to organized labor," the contractor hastily signed up.

The House committee also has evidence that Lowry had negotiated another pay-off from Robert Minte, president of the Edward W. Minte Company who wanted to spray the Forest Glen Hospital. Lowry phoned Minte from the Southern Hotel in Baltimore while Moore was in the room. "I have 1,000 questions to ask you about that Forest Glen project," the Painters Union official badgered.

Later, on August 17, 1951, Minte handed Lowry and Moore an envelope containing ten $100 bills. Rhodes was also supposed to get a split, but Lowry proposed to Moore that they tell Rhodes they collected only $600. As a result Rhodes got $200 while Lowry and Moore got $400 each.

Next Christmas, Minte gave the three union officials $500 to split between them.

Again on December 3, 1951, Lowry, Sullivan and Moore divided another $500 pay-off from All States Co., for supplying good men and guarding against labor trouble on paint job at Ft. Belvoir, Va. There was also a payment of $100 each from Ernest L. Park of United Painters and Decorators for permission to use spray guns instead of brushes at Howard University, and a $500 pay-off from the Hudson Painting Co.

Democratic congressmen who balked at further committee investigation last week said they were not opposed to going into the matter of Painters' Union payoffs; that this was a relatively small matter, did not represent the great majority of honest labor unions, but they argued that Chairman Bender's committee has been unfair and anti-labor in its overall approach.

Simultaneously, top leaders of both the CIO and AFL have taken the initiative in trying to clean out racketeering. Dave Beck, international head of the Teamsters, suspended some of his top Michigan leaders after learning of racketeering in the Detroit area.

And George Meany, acting with Beck and Paul Hall, head of the Seafarers Union, precipitated the clean-up of the New York waterfront after most of the big shipping companies had shown a preference for dealing with the old, graft - ridden Longshoremans'

Super And Security

By Roger W. Babson

WASHINGTON Since Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer

has been judged devotedly loyal, impeccably discreet, and an invaluable public servant, the heart of the case against him is his alleged lack of "enthusiasm" for the hydrogen bomb.

To understand just how astonishing this case is, it is necessary to Dr. Henry Smyth shared know the hitherto secret history of the origins of the hydrogen bomb project. Here, briefly, are the essential facts.

The debate about the bomb began when Dr. Edward Teller, the great thermonuclear expert, came to Washington immediately after the explosion of the first Soviet atomic bomb in September 1949. His purpose was to gain support for a crash program to make super, as the purely hypothetical hydrogen bomb was then called. To this end, Teller buttonholed Lewis Strauss, then a member of the Atomic Energy Commission. Strauss in turn urged the commission and President Truman to give consideration to the kind of program Teller wanted. The problem was thereupon referred to the AEC's general advisory committee; and this committee met in late October 1949, in hour-long debate, under the chairmanship of

Dr. Oppenheimer. On October 29, 1949, the advisory committee reported to the White House and the AEC. The committee majority opposed a crash program to build super, at least for the time being, but did not foreclose the idea of such a program in the future. This group was headed by Dr. Oppenheimer. and included Drs. James Conant and Lee Dubridge (who wrote the majority report); Hartley Rowe of the United Fruit Company, and Oliver Buckley of the Bell Telephone Laboratories. Special Studies Ordered

The minority of the general advisory committee went even further than Dr. Oppenheimer and his fellow-members of the majority. They declared that the H-bomb would be a weapon so horrible it should never be made under any circumstances. They advocated an American pledge never to make it, with the proviso that a Russian hydrogen bomb test, on being detected, would be treated as an act of war.

The two men who took this interesting position were the great physicists, Dr. Enrico Fermi and Dr. I. I. Rabi. Dr. Rabi, whose "lack of enthusiasm" was so much greater than Dr. Oppenheimer's, now holds Dr. Oppenheimer's former place as chairman of the general advisory committee. As such, he is Admiral Strauss's chief scientific mentor.

After the advisory committee reports were received, the AEC acted. On November 9, all five members of the AEC sent their views to the President in a curiously tortured document. It said, in effect, that Strauss and Gordon Dean inclined towards an all-out effort to make super, while chairman Lilienthal, Sumner Pike, and doubts of the scientists. But, it concluded, the final decision was the lonely and terrible responsibility of the President. Dean, Lilienthal, Pike, and Smyth appended their individual opinions to this overall report, for some reason Strauss did not. In the meanwhile, Truman had ordered special studies of the problem to be made by the State and Defense Departments.

State reported categorically that there was not the slightest hope of achieving control of the new weapons by agreement with the Soviets-and this hope had influenced those who had counselled delay. Defense pointed to most cogent reasons why this country could not risk the Soviet Union achieving the superbomb first.

In the interval, the substance of the issue had been reported, initially by these reporters, and there was an almost unanimous public reaction in favor of making the bomb. As a result, the whole climate of opinion began to change. In late December, Strauss belatedly sent his individual memorandum to the President, and for the first time came out flatly for super. The President then ordered the bomb to be made.

Picture Hardly Accurate There are two points to note

about this slice of history. First, it is certainly true that Strauss performed a useful public service in the debate on super. But the picture which has been so often painted of Strauss bravely and single-mindedly foiling the nefarious designs of an equally singleminded Oppenheimer, is hardly accurate. Those who have put about this version of events have been, to borrow a phrase from the Gray report, "less than candid." And the chief putter-about has been none other than Admiral Strauss himself. Second, if "lack of enthusiasm" for the terrible hydrogen weapon is to mark a man as a security risk, who then is secure? Dr. Teller, no doubt, is safe. So, oddly enough, is former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also a strong advocate of super from the start. For the rest, certain of this country's most respected businessmen, and virtually all its leading scientists, must now be marked security risks.

The problem of holding down physical deterioration is important. If it has its roots in middle age, we must concentrate on early prevention rather than treatment later in life, when the effects are obvious. Fatigue, weakness, and mental debility are common symptoms of old age but they also are common symptoms of infection,

Modern Man May See A Supernova

A distant star, the California Institute of Technology reports, has just flared up to form a supernova, the most spectacular of celestial spectacles. "Just flared up" is used relatively. This happened approximately 20,000,000 years ago.

But galaxy NGC 5668 is so incredibly distant that the light from a phenomenon occurring there at about the time the earth was formed has only recently reached this insignificant planet.

It made good time, too—an estimated 670,000,000 miles per hour. The reason it took so long is that it had a long way to come-roughly 120,000,000,000,000,-000,000 miles. The galaxy, an entire universe similar to our milky way, is that far off.

The fact that the behavior of one single star in a galaxy containing countless heavenly bodies is now visible, even through an 18-inch telescope, provides an idea of what a remarkable spectacle a supernova must be. What is a supernova? The Star of Bethlehem may have been one, but the ancients didn't leave enough astronomical data to judge by. A supernova is like a nova, but 1,000 times as bright. Any star may become a nova, perhaps, Astronomers cannot yet distinguish between a star that will become a nova tomorrow and a star that will only become one after millions of years, if ever. To become a nova, all a star has to do is grow brighter.

If the sun became brighter and hotter and bigger, until in a few days it was 100,000 times as bright as it is now, it would be a nova. If it went on becoming brighter until it was 100,000,000 times brighter, it would be a supernova. Of course, there would be no life left on earth by the time it was a mere dozen times brighter.

This isn't likely to happen to the sun, but supernovae appear in our galaxy every 500 or 600 years on the average, and the odds are millions to one against the sun's becoming even a nova. Astronomers consider the sun too small to become a supernova.

The Star of Bethlehem was probably a supernova in this galaxy—a faint or invisible star that flared up to a brightness greater than that of any normal star in the sky. Chinese astronomers recorded a great flareup in 1054, which is believed to have been a supernova which formed the still expanding Crab Nebula. Modern man has never seen the spectacle of a supernova, so perhaps he's about due for one.

The Grandstand Play

some senator or counsel gets off on a tangent and several hours are consumed in intellectual trivia which undoubtedly are due to fatigue or to some relaxation into a boyswill-be-boys mood. Then Senator Stuart Symington looks very stern and fatigued and speaks ardently, after having received some memoranda from Robert Kennedy, who sits behind him. Or maybe, the counsel from Boston, Mr. Joseph N. Welch, puts on an owlish look and asks a question like, "Why don't you tell the FBI?"

It all sounds terrific. It is a very good performance on the whole. Certainly nobody is wasting money on it; it comes for free on television.

So, all the questioning about why the list of 130 or 135 Communists is not being given to the Defense Department or the FBI were argued for hours without anybody breaking a smile. Yet there was not a senator or counsel who does not know all the answers. Senator Symington waxed eloquent in his praise of Charles E. Wilson, erstwhile head of General Motors and now secretary of defense, and told of his own experience when he ran the Emerson Manufacturing Company in St. Louis before he became a statesman.

What they all knew, Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois brought out patiently, like a father gently chastising naughty children. He brought out the fact that Secretary of Defense Wilson does not have the powers of subpoena. No executive officer of the government has the power of subpoena. Only congressional committees and the courts possess the power of subpoena. Therefore, Secretary of Defense Wilson, with the best of intentions, cannot call witnesses before him; he cannot swear them in; he cannot force them to testify under oath. They can deny allegations without fear of reprisal or punishment.

Furthermore, it is an indisputable fact that the UE, the principal union in the electrical equipment industry, is a Communist-dominated union, dismissed from the CIO for being so. No such union would permit the dismissal of its members from a job unless a situation is developed which makes further employment impossible. No quiet investigation, such as President Eisenhower advocates, will help in this situation. The number of Communists in private plants working on government contracts will proliferate unless a noise about such employment is constantly

A great fuss is made at the McCarthy-Stevens hearings about J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI. Everybody makes a speech on the greatness of Mr. Hoover, but all the time they are dragging his name and organization into this messy picture. Mr. Welch is marvelous the way he pulls the FBI into everything. Last week, one afternoon, he wanted Roy Cohn to run fast to J. Edgar Hoover and to slip him the 130 names

All the FBI can do is to notify the department concerned with the defense contract. After having notified them, its function ceases, because no law forbids a Communist from working in a defense plant and no man can be sent to prison for it. The problem is not one of the law but of public opinion.

The senators know that the FBI can watch a Soviet military attache moving around the country spying, stealing secrets, engaging in work that is harmful to this country. They can send reports to the State Department but the FBI can do nothing about it. They cannot arrest the military attache because he enjoys extraterritorial rights. Only the State Department can order this man out of the country.

Senator Henry Jackson seems so sincere when he is surprised at what he does not know, but I wonder whether he is quite so naive, because to me he seems a very knowing person who, if he were chairman of this or any other committee, could do a good investigating job. If the Democrats recapture the Congress, he will have a chance to prove that he can leave no stone unturned. But surely, he must know that the power of subpoena is the heart of this problem.

Naturally politics is politics just as fun is fun, but I wonder if these gentlemen of the Senate will talk in October as they do in June.

Last year in Detroit, hearings on racketeering in the Teamsters Union were suspended after Michigan Teamster leaders made a deal to support Senator Homer Ferguson, Republican for re-election. In the past the Teamsters in that area have lined up strong behind Democrats.

Local 368; John E. Sullivan business agent for the District Council, and Archie Moore, also a business

The evidence was developed because Moore had secretly sealed all his bribes in envelopes, recorded the circumstances under which they were paid, and communicated this information to nine other union officials in an effort to clean up racketeering. Moore even went so far as to list in his income-tax returns what he called receipts from

Among the "bribes" was one of $500 a month paid by the Metro Decorating Company of New York which got a contract to paint Andrews Air Base just outside Washington, and which made a deal on September 12, 1951, to make six monthly payments of $500 in order to avoid labor troubles. The money, according to Moore, was divided between Lowrey, Rhodes, Sullivan and himself.

Also at Andrews Field, Moore personally collected $500 from Michael Restuscia, a tapping contractor, who wished to avoid labor trouble. The money was split, $166 each, to Lowry and Sullivan, according to Moore's deposition.

Painting Capitol Dome

At one time, trouble arose over painting the Capitol dome. The Capitol architect, David Lynn, had signed with a contractor who imported painters outside the District of Columbia Painters Council. But when Lowry threatened to fly helicopters around the Capitol with signs reading "unfair to organized labor," the contractor hastily signed up.

The House committee also has evidence that Lowry had negotiated another pay-off from Robert Minte, president of the Edward W. Minte Company who wanted to spray the Forest Glen Hospital. Lowry phoned Minte from the Southern Hotel in Baltimore while

Moore was in the room. "I have 1,000 questions to ask ject," the Painters Union official badgered.

Later, on August 17, 1951, Minte handed Lowry and Moore an envelope containing ten $100 bills. Rhodes was also supposed to get a split, but Lowry proposed to Moore that they tell Rhodes they collected only $600. As a result Rhodes got $200 while Lowry and Moore got $400 each.

Next Christmas, Minte gave the three union officials $500 to split between them.

Again on December 3, 1951, Lowry, Sullivan and Moore divided another $500 pay-off from All States Co., for supplying good men and guarding against labor trouble on a paint job at Ft. Belvoir, Va. There was also a payment of $100 each from Ernest L. Park of United Painters and Decorators for permission to use spray guns instead of brushes at Howard University, and a $500 pay-off from the Hudson Painting Co.

Labor Union Funds

Democratic congressmen who balked at further committee investigation last week said they were not opposed to going into the matter of Painters' Union payoffs; that this was a relatively small matter, did not represent the great majority of honest labor unions, but they argued that Chairman Bender's committee has been unfair and anti-labor in its overall approach.

Simultaneously, top leaders of both the CIO and AFL have taken the initiative in trying to clean out racketeering. Dave Beck, international head of the Teamsters, suspended some of his top Michigan leaders after learning of

WASHINGTON

Since Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer impeccably discreet, and an inof the case against him is his althe hydrogen bomb.

To understand just how astonishing this case is, it is necessary to know the hitherto secret history of the origins of the hydrogen bomb project. Here, briefly, are the essential facts.

The debate about the bomb began when Dr. Edward Teller, the great thermonuclear expert, came to Washington immediately after the explosion of the first Soviet atomic bomb in September 1949. His purpose was to gain support for a crash program to make super, as the purely hypothetical hydrogen bomb was then called. To this end, Teller buttonholed Lewis Strauss, then a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Strauss in turn urged the commission and President Truman to give consideration to the kind of program Teller wanted. The problem was thereupon referred to the AEC's general advisory committee; and this committee met in late October 1949, in hour-long debate, under the chairmanship of Dr. Oppenheimer.

On October 29, 1949, the advisory committee reported to the White House and the AEC. The committee majority opposed a crash program to build super, at least for the time being, but did not foreclose the idea of such a program in the future. This group was headed by Dr. Oppenheimer, and included Drs. James Conant and Lee Dubridge (who wrote the majority report); Hartley Rowe of the United Fruit Company, and Oliver Buckley of the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

The minority of the general advisory committee went even further than Dr. Oppenheimer and his fellow-members of the majority. They declared that the H-bomb would be a weapon so horrible it should never be made under any circumstances. They advocated an American pledge never to make it, with the proviso that a Russian hydrogen bomb test, on being detected, would be treated as an act The two men who took this inter-ports were received, the AEC acted. On November 9, all five has been judged devotedly loyal, members of the AEC sent their views to the President in a curvaluable public servant, the heart iously tortured document. It said, in effect, that Strauss and Gordon leged lack of "enthusiasm" for Dean inclined towards an all-out effort to make super, while chairman Lilienthal, Sumner Pike, and Dr. Henry Smyth shared the doubts of the scientists. But, it concluded, the final decision was the lonely and terrible responsibility of the President. Dean, Lilienthal, Pike, and Smyth appended their individual opinions to this overall report, for some reason Strauss did not. In the meanwhile, Truman had ordered special studies of the problem to be made by the State and Defense

Departments. State reported categorically that there was not the slightest hope of achieving control of the new weapons by agreement with the Soviets-and this hope had influenced those who had counselled delay. Defense pointed to most cogent reasons why this country could not risk the Soviet Union achieving the superbomb first. In the interval, the substance of the issue had been reported, initially by these reporters, and there was an almost unanimous public reaction in favor of making the bomb. As a result, the whole climate of opinion began to change. In late December, Strauss belatedly sent his individual memorandum to the President, and for the first time came out flatly for super. The President then ordered the bomb to be made.

Picture Hardly Accurate There are two points to note

about this slice of history. First, it is certainly true that Strauss performed a useful public service in the debate on super. But the picture which has been so often painted of Strauss bravely and single-mindedly foiling the nefarious designs of an equally singleminded Oppenheimer, is hardly accurate. Those who have put about this version of events have been, to borrow a phrase from the Gray report, "less than candid." And the chief putter-about has been none other than Admiral Strauss himself. Second, if "lack of enthusiasm"

for the terrible hydrogen weapon is to mark a man as a security risk, who then is secure? Dr. Teller, no doubt, is safe. So, oddly enough, is former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also a strong advocate of super from the start. For the rest, certain of this country's most respected businessmen, and virtually all its leading scientists, must now be marked pitcher in the Bi-State Conference, broke LaSalle's 9-game winning streak yesterday when he hurled Allegany High School to a 3-0 decision over the Explorers at Penn Avenue Field. Bobby racked up his 9th win of the season with a one-hit pitching performance. His two losses came at the hands of Fort Hill and LaSalle but he squared accounts by beating both schools in return games. Dawson has pitched in 14 of the 15 games played by Allegany, twirled seven complete contests, worked 651/3 innings and has fanned 75 batsmen. Yesterday's win tied Allegany with Fort Hill and LaSalle for the city championship. The Campers need a win today over Valley High to deadlock LaSalle for the Bi-State Conference title.

In Memoriam

 $2.10

In loving memory of my husband.
William E. Stinnett, who passed away two years ago today, June 8, 1952.
Why did he go, when life seemed fair, And no dark clouds were near.
To dim the brightness of our lives, Or start the bitter tear?

We thought not at the close of day. Or start the bitter tear?
We thought not at the close of day,
when night veiled earth and sky
That one so full of life and hope,
Would breathe his last farewell.
Sadly missed by his wife,
Margaret E. "Nell" Stinnett

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my husband, 1951 DeSoto Clb. Cpe. R.H. William E. Stinnett, who passed away two years ago today, June 8, 1952.

Why did he go, when life seemed fair, And no dark clouds were near.

To dim the brightness of our lives, Or start the bitter tear?

We thought not at the close of day, when night veiled earth and sky

That one as full of life and hope. That one so full of life and hope,
Would breathe his last farewell.
Sadly missed by his wife,
Margaret E. "Nell" Stinnett

Artist's Conception Of Enlarged Flintstone School

This is an artist's idea of what the enlarged and improved Flintstone School will look like when it is finished. The John I. Vandegrift Company, this city, has been working all spring on the construction of a $500,000 addition to the school. Four sections to the school may be observed in the drawing. At the extreme left is the new combination auditorium-gymnasium. The second section contains the building as it was before the improvements were started. The third segment includes home economics and cafeteria facilities, an office and two new classrooms, all now being added. At the far right is the vocational agricultural shop which was completed a year ago in the first step in the improvement of the school along Route 40, 12 miles east of Cumberland. Another added facility for the school, finished last fall at a cost of about $25,000, is a new sewage disposal plan. When the improvements are finished Mrs. Elsie Hill Roland, principal, and her staff will have one of the better equipped schools in the county. The architect for the job is S. Russ Minter of this city. This is part of $31/2 million county school program.
